Trustees approve plan to alleviate overcrowding

by Susan Grober

Trustees have voted to immediately initiate a $2.9-million addition at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, as part of a $7,650,000 project to solve the Haliburton County Board of Education's accommodation problems.

At last Tuesday's board meeting, trustees agreed to the addition at the Minden school, consisting of eight classrooms, a double gymnasium, and the conversion of the existing gymnasium to a library.

The board also voted to seek $4,750,000 in funding to build a new Kindergarten to Grade 6 school (consisting of 26 rooms, plus a single gymnasium and library) on the secondary school property in Haliburton.

Once this school is built, J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School will become a Grade 7 to 9 facility for all students in the county.

The board will implement the plan in two stages — the Archie Stouffer addition will begin immediately, and the new school is to be built within a long-term period of five years.

The chosen plan was recommended by the board's accommodation committee to alleviate overcrowding in elementary and secondary level classrooms.

Currently there are 240 Archie Stouffer, and 100 Victoria Street school students located in temporary accommodation.

The Archie Stouffer addition will allow primary students to move out of the annex in the former Dollo's IGA building, and move into the main school.

The plan will also solve future problems at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

The board estimates that by 1998, the high school will see an enrolment increase of 124 more students than the present total of 628.

Although the majority of trustees voted in favour of the proposal, a few were strongly opposed.

Minden Trustee Mary Anne Wilson said the addi-

Minden council supports proposal to dig new well

by Susan Grober

A report which recommends a $392,000 water supply upgrading project for Minden village has been accepted by council, despite opposition from one of its members.

At last Thursday's council meeting, Councillor Lewis Stevens spoke out against the report's recommendation to drill a well on Bobcaygeon Road when a new well has already been drilled on St. Germain Street beside the municipal firehall, at a cost of $45,387.

The report in question is a Phase 2 environmental study from Triton Engineering Services, which supports construction of a new well beside the two existing wells on Bobcaygeon Road.

In the report, concerns are raised about the water quality of the St. Germain well, because levels of turbidity (murkiness due to suspended solids) exceed provincial standards.

Public Works Superintendent Clayton Cameron said the Ministry of Environment has accepted the report, which also recommends that rehabilitative work be carried out on the existing pumphouse and one of the wells on Bobcaygeon Road, for part of the $392,000 cost.

"This is as strong a recommendation as I've ever

Minden candidates to meet on Wednesday

The spotlight will be turned on municipal candidates in Minden this Wednesday at an all-candidates meeting in the auditorium of Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

The meeting, sponsored by The Times, will provide voters with a chance to evaluate the platforms of people seeking the positions of reeve, deputy-reeve and school board trustee in Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Each candidate will be allowed a brief opening statement before the floor is opened to written questions from the audience.

The meeting begins at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served during an intermission.

Local economy tackled at meeting

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

It was one small step for economic development in Victoria-Haliburton.

Last Thursday, representatives from a variety of industries met in Lindsay to discuss the area's slumping economy and try to develop solutions.

The committee was initiated by local MPP Dennis Drainville. His goal is to have the group develop concrete proposals to improve the economy in the riding which he will then take to the government.

Among the 40 people who attended the meeting were representatives from a variety of industries such as tourism, forestry, agriculture and manufacturing. Also at the meeting were employees of the ministries of tourism, natural resources and agriculture; members of the Haliburton and Lindsay chambers of commerce; and economic development officers from the two counties and the town of Lindsay.

"I didn't call this meeting because I think Dennis Drainville has all the answers. That would be presumptuous and stupid," said Drainville.

"We need a united approach."

While there has been a lot of work done on economic development in the two counties, Drainville said there has been no united approach.

The objective of the committee is not to do another study, said Drainville, but to build on the work which has already been done and come up with specific solutions to

Election '91

Candidates face questions from tax coalition at meeting

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

It was grass roots democracy at its best - and at its worst.

On Saturday, about 240 people crammed the auditorium of Archie Stouffer Elementary School to hear municipal candidates for county and school board positions respond to questions from the Haliburton County Taxpayers Coalition.

With invitations going to 51 county and school board candidates, organizers knew the magnitude of the endeavor they were attempting and tried to develop a program which would allow the evening to move as quickly as possible.

As it was, 28 candidates showed up and the meeting turned into a five-and-a-half hour marathon with the last answer given well after midnight, to a noticeably diminished crowd.

Moderators for the evening were Gary Kenney and Bill Payne while Archie Dobbins and Craig Saunders asked the questions.

When it worked, the format worked well. Voters had a chance to compare the positions put forward by the candidates and the issue of fiscal restraint was broken into specific topics, leading to answers which contained more content than is usually heard at other candidate meetings.

But as would be expected from a meeting with such a large scope, there were flaws as well. Many of the questions were ambiguous and often the only thing the candidates could agree on was the fact that they didn't understand what was being asked.

Some of the questions put experienced councillors and trustees at a disadvantage over first-time candidates. While it was easy to see the answer the coalition was looking for, the "right" answer wasn't always the realistic answer which would only be evident to those candidates who have previously held office.

Also, the format allowed little time for candidates to develop positions or challenge each other on contentious statements.

The meeting was broken into three sessions, one for each of the positions of deputy-reeve, reeve and trustee.

Of the 12 candidates vying for seven deputy-reeve positions in the county, six attended Saturday's meeting. They were: Lewis Stevens and Bob Sisson from Anson, Hindon and Minden; Curry Bishop and Jack Cox from Dysart et al; Dan Rivett from Cardiff and Leo McCarthy from Glamorgan.

There are 17 people looking to fill 10 reeve chairs and eight of them were at the meeting. They were: Verne Graham, Bern Berry and Ray Moore from Anson, Hindon and Minden; Sid Cooper and Chris Hodgson from Dysart et al; Beverly MacDuff from Glamorgan; Ross Rabjohn from Sherborne et al and Cam Ecclestone from Lutterworth. Both Rabjohn and Ecclestone have been acclaimed to their positions.

The trustees had the best turnout with the attendance of 14 of the 22 candidates who are seeking spots on the 15-member board of education. They were: Wally Bunn, Mary Anne Wilson, Wendy Ladurantaye, John Purc, Norm Mills and Mike Kitcheman from Anson, Hindon and Minden; Len Salvatori, Wayne Wood, Tim Casey and Julia Robertson from Dysart et al; LeRoy Eager and Trevor Pawson from Stanhope and Elsa Louise May from Snowdon. May has been acclaimed.

The tax coalition has been crusading in the name of the public purse since last spring when the county passed a 35 per cent increase in the tax levy and Saturday's agenda focused on the issue of fiscal responsibility in local govern-

In a majority of answers candidates agreed with the need for restraint when it comes to spending tax dollars, but there was some difference of opinions on the feasibility of limiting tax increases and the level of severity needed in drafting budgets.

Reports on the three different sessions for reeve, deputy-reeve and trustee are included on pages four and five in this paper.

Minden trustees oppose new Haliburton village school

tion to Archie Stouffer would make the school too large, and objected to building a new school in Haliburton, rather than Minden.

"On behalf of the taxpayers I represent, I cannot support an option that would remove services from the Village of Minden," said Wilson, who was supported by fellow Minden Trustee Wendy Ladurantaye.

Wilson also felt the plan places too much value on the needs of the high school, and loses track of elementary students' needs.

Lloyd Griffiths said he is "bitterly opposed" to having a Grade 7 to 9 school.

Griffiths said students at those grade levels are at a difficult age, and spoke out against moving "a few hundred of them" together in one school.

"Maybe we're doing it for financial reasons, but not for sound educational reasons," he said. "Educationally, it's all wrong."

Also, the plan would force the board to deal with differences between teachers from both the elementary and secondary federations, who would have to work together in one school.

"We are in for some serious problems as far as staffing," said Griffiths.

Nancy Dunford said she didn't like the idea of having students educated in three different buildings, instead of only two. "It just seems like there's one more step for them to go," she said.

Nancy Stinson, acting chair of the accommodation committee, said it gives all students in the county a better chance to get to know each other before going into high school.

Superintendent Dale

Robinson said a Grade 7 to 9 school is in line with Ministry of Education directives in favour of destreaming. He said: "I think the ministry is determined to package our curriculum for destreaming," which holds off basic, general and advanced level classes until Grade 11.

Robinson added that the question of two federations working together "will have to be addressed by the province in order to make this work."

Director of Education Brad Saunders said the committee has anguished over the same concerns Griffiths expressed.

"I can't think of a group of students who are more demanding," he said. "But is there a better alternative in terms of education and of cost to the taxpayers? If we place the right teachers in that school, we will have quality education."

Chairman Cheryl Murdoch said teachers who work well with adolescents will be chosen to teach the Grade 7 to 9 students. "We do have those teachers now, scattered across the county," she said. "We just need to bring them together."

Murdoch spoke in favour of the plan, because it is the only option considered by the board which addresses future accommodation problems at the high school.

She also said students tend to get too familiar with one building, and that a change would be good for them.

"From Kindergarten to Grade 8 is nine long years, and if Junior Kindergarten is brought in place it will make 10."

Len Salvatori agreed that Grade 7 and 8 students are in public school too long.

"I feel it's better to get them into another school," he said. "Because kids these days know so much about sex, drugs and alcohol. And that setting isn't good for the younger students."

At present, elementary level students who go to school in Minden are educated in Archie Stouffer's main building, its five-room annex, and seven portables.

J. Douglas Hodgson has two portables, along with its main building. And Victoria Street school has five portables with its main building.

Trustees chose the plan over three other options presented by the accommodation committee.

Trustees weigh options before voting on accommodation plan

by Susan Grober

The Haliburton County Board of Education has chosen to implement a $7,650,000 project to solve its accommodation problems.

In doing so, trustees had to consider the best method to deal with overcrowding in the schools.

To deal with the problems, trustees chose one of four options presented at last Tuesday's meeting by the board's accommodation committee. (For details on this option, please see story on page one.)

The other three options presented in a report to the board are as follows:

Option One — Addition to each affected school

— at Archie Stouffer, add 11 classrooms, one double gymnasium, and convert the existing gymnasium to a library, at $3,350,000;

— at J. Douglas Hodgson, add 12 classrooms at $1,800,000; and,

— at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, add six classrooms, a double gymnasium, and upgrade the cafeteria at $2,950,000.

The total cost of this option is $8,100,000.

Option Two — Build new school on Archie Stouffer property — build a new Kindergarten to Grade 3 school consisting of 11 rooms and a single gymnasium, at a cost of $2,400,000;

— at Archie Stouffer, add a double gymnasium, and convert the existing gymnasium to library at $1,700,000;

— at J. D. Hodgson, add 12 classrooms at $1,800,000;

— at the high school, add six classrooms, a double gymnasium, and upgrade the cafeteria at $2,950,000.

The total cost of this option is $8,850,000.

Option Three — Build new school in outlying area between Minden and Haliburton (such as West Guilford, or Carnarvon) — build a new Kindergarten to Grade 8 school consisting of 16 rooms plus double gymnasium at $3,700,000, with land and sewage costs at an additional $400,000;

— at Archie Stouffer, add seven classrooms, a double gymnasium, and convert existing gymnasium to library, at $2,750,000; and,

— at the high school, add six classroom, a double gymnasium, and upgrade the cafeteria at a cost of $2,950,000.

The total cost of this option is $9,800,000.

The report listed the pros and cons of each option, which board members considered before voting on the matter.

One main concern of trustees was that the size of each school be limited to maintain close student/teacher relationships.

The report states that to build an addition to each affected school would make each too large, and that building a new school in an outlying area would leave Archie Stouffer and J.D. Hodgson too large.

However, building a new school on either the Archie Stouffer or the high school property would maintain small schools and close personal contact.

The board also considered how each option would impact water supplies, sewer capacities, and transportation.

To build a new school in an outlying area between Minden and Haliburton, the board would have to undertake studies to ensure suitable water supplies are available, and that the land can handle the sewage capacity of the school.

Also, because this school would not be connected to a municipal sewage system, the various provincial ministries involved would be cautious in giving this plan approval.

The impact on transportation would present significant problems as well, forcing the board to either increase the number of buses, or stagger the beginning of each school day to allow the secondary students to reach Haliburton.

To construct a new building on school property, however, would have little impact on sewer and water (because the changes can be handled by existing services), or transportation (because buses already service those areas).

The chosen option which turns J.D. Hodgson into a Grade 7 to 9 school will make staffing more difficult, as it would involve two collective agreements between elementary and secondary level teachers.

But this same plan is the only option which solves long-term accommodation problems at the high school.

And each of the options considered provides the village of Minden with a double gymnasium as a community resource.

Tax coalition candidates meeting

Reeve candidates differ on Chamber issue

The people seeking the top positions in Haliburton County represent a variety of opinions on issues like the Chamber of Commerce, taxation and the county official plan.

Eight candidates representing five municipalities attended Saturday night's meeting sponsored by the tax coalition. They were: Verne Graham, Bern Berry and Ray Moore from Anson, Hindon and Minden; Chris Hodgson and Sid Cooper representing Dysart et al; Beverly MacDuff from Glamorgan; Cam Ecclestone from Lutterworth and Ross Rabjohn from Sherborne et al. Both Rabjohn and Ecclestone have been acclaimed in their respective municipalities.

Like the candidates for the deputy-reeve positions, the perspective reeves agreed on a number of issues for which there was little or no discussion.

They all agreed:

- Welfare legislation should be reviewed to make the system more efficient;
- Municipalities should have the right to veto downloaded programs from the province for which taxpayers are unwilling to pay;
- County should be operated in a more open manner with less discussions made in committees;
- There is no need for the county economic development office which was established last year; and
- Councillors should face a public review of their performance after they have been in office one year.

However, on other important issues, like tax increases, council wages, the Chamber of Commerce and referendums for large capital expenses, there was a wide variety of opinions.

Tax increases

Seven of the eight candidates indicated they were in favour of tax increases for locally-controlled portions of the budget which do not exceed the rate of inflation with the only dissenting opinion coming from Minden Reeve Bern Berry.

Berry, who was the only current member of county council to attend the meeting, said if the county needs more services, and there is funding from the province, then residents should receive those services. He used the proposed expansion of Hyland Crest as an example of a situation where the budget may increase by more than the rate of inflation.

Travel and convention costs

Like the deputy-reeve candidates, the people seeking office as reeve did not want to give up the option of having councillors and staff attend conventions and training sessions at taxpayers expense.

They all agreed that conventions provide an important forum from which to lobby the government, gain useful knowledge and keep abreast of new developments and initiatives.

Expenses beyond the budget

Moore used the topic of proposed expenses which are outside the current budget to attack Minden council. He accused the municipality of being $100,000 over-budget for the roads department and said new costs should not be allowed.

Rising to Moore's challenge, Berry disputed the former reeve's claim and said road department expenditures were right on budget. He said new costs have to be carefully looked at and, if worthwhile, should be considered. He used the expansion of the Minden arena as an example of an expenditure which was not included in the budget.

Cooper said any additional costs should be deferred until the following year when they could be included in the budget.

Rabjohn said in cases of emergency situations the municipal council would have to pay for costs not included in the budget, such as higher road maintenance during winters where there is more snow or ice than expected.

Hodgson said in most cases additional costs should not be accepted, but if a new expenditure is necessary the money should be taken from the existing budget by cutting back in other areas.

Graham said that if the council budgets properly there should be no additional expenses and the budget should not be changed in the middle of the year.

MacDuff also agreed that there should be no additional costs borne by the municipality once the budget is set for the year.

Council wages

While most of the candidates said they would be willing to freeze council wages for the next three years, Berry and Moore did not.

Berry said wages were frozen in 1990 and he asked the audience if they would be willing to accept no increase in pay for 1991, 1992 and 1993, to which several spectators answered "yes". Berry said that, as costs increase, councillors should expect to receive more money.

Moore said he believes councillors should be paid according to the number of meetings they attend so the wages would be based on the workload of each member.

In response, Graham said we would not be in the election if it was just for the money and that the amount paid has no effect.

Hiring freeze

None of the candidates was willing to commit to a three-year freeze on the hiring of additional staff. Most said brining new staff on board depends on the level of growth in the county and the provision of expanded service that would accompany growth.

Amalgamation

All of the candidates agreed that the number of municipalities in the county should be reduced through amalgamation. However, MacDuff qualified her answer by saying any restructuring would have to be carefully reviewed to ensure it is cost effective and would not reduce the level of service received by residents.

Capital expenditures

The candidates were split over whether or not ratepayers should be able to vote on capital projects which are financed beyond a single term of council.

MacDuff, Graham and Ecclestone agreed that binding referenda should be required before such projects are undertaken, but the other candidates disagreed for a variety of reasons.

Hodgson said once the process was started, the size of projects requiring a referendum would become smaller and smaller. He also expressed concern that residents in larger centres would be able to block capital projects for less populated areas. As an extreme example, he asked the audience to imagine in all resident in Ontario were allowed to vote on capital projects in Haliburton County.

The other candidates said referenda would be cumbersome and expensive and said residents elect councillors to make those decisions. It was also noted that municipal debenture have to be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Chamber of Commerce

There were many different visions what the role of the Chamber of Commerce should be and the kind of relationship the county should have with the chamber.

Graham, Hodgson and Rabjohn all indicated that the county should finance the chamber's marketing activities through a fee-for-service basis.

Ecclestone took the opposing view and said the chamber should be self-sufficient and not receive any money from the county at all. His answer drew a round of applause from members of the audience.

MacDuff echoed Ecclestone's sentiments and said the chamber needed to look at more effective management of its resources. This elicited a second round of applause.

Moore said he supported the county financially supporting the Chamber of Commerce to the best of its ability.

Berry also favoured supporting the Chamber but said that it the county is going to underwrite the majority of Chamber expenses, it should have more control over how the money is spent.

Cooper said it would be nice if the Chamber could operate without county money but if the county is going to contribute financially, there should be no strings attached.

County Official Plan

Of the eight candidates, only Moore and MacDuff support the idea of proceeding with the county official plan at this time.

Moore said the plan is important as a set of guidelines under which the county develops. He also said the smaller townships can not afford to develop their own official plans right now.

In reply, Berry said Minden, Dysart and Cardiff all had the foresight to develop, and pay for, their own official plans and the other seven municipalities should do the same.

Ecclestone said an official plan will be important in the future, but until the county is restructured he said the idea makes no sense.

Graham said that while a county official plan is a nice idea, it is not a priority. Given the need for fiscal restraint, he said there are other issues which should take priority over the plan.

Hodgson said a county official plan is not needed because planning matters should be handled by the local municipalities.

County Planning Department

When asked about the need for the county's planning department, only Moore defended the decision. He was on county council when the department was created and said the move was intended to abolish the need for municipalities to hire outside planning consultants. He said the cost of the county planning service was to have been borne by developers.

Graham took issue with Moore's explanation. He said that with planner Mark Stagg working full-time on the county official plan until 1995, there is no way he can handle the additional workload of serving individual municipalities' planning needs as well.

In their closing statements, the candidates listed the environment, financial management and provincial control as issues of importance during the next three years.

Deputy-reeve hopefuls have much in common

The new stock of deputy-reeves at county council are going to be careful spenders who are in favour of more open government, amalgamation of municipalities and who are opposed to a county economic development office, if the candidates who attended last Saturday's meeting are any indication.

Six candidates representing four municipalities took the stage to face the first round of questions from members of the Haliburton County Taxpayers Coalition.

In listening to the answers put forth by the candidates, none of whom currently hold a seat on county council, there was more agreement than disagreement and in many areas their responses were in accord with positions favoured by the coalition.

In attendance were: Bob Sisson and Lewis Stevens from Minden; Jack Cox and Curry Bishop from Dysart; Dan Rivett from Cardiff and Leo McCarthy from Glamorgan.

All the candidates agreed to the following positions:

- Tax increases for areas of the budget under local control should be held to the rate of inflation or less;
- Municipalities should have the right to veto new programs downloaded from the province which local taxpayers are unwilling to pay for;
- Ontario's welfare legislation should be reviewed to increase efficiency;
- County council should be operated more in open and less in committees and more public input is needed when preparing the budget;
- Councillors' wages should be frozen for the next three years;
- The number of municipalities in the county should be reduced through amalgamation;
- Large capital expenditures which are financed beyond the term of council should be approved by referendum; and
- There is no need for the county economic development office which was established earlier this year.

Expenses outside the budget

On the question of proposed expenses which are not included in the year's budget, most of the candidates agreed that additional costs would have to be carefully scrutinized.

McCarthy said new expenditures would have to be evaluated and, if necessary, paid for by cutting money from other areas of the budget.

Cox and Rivett both said if there is no budget surplus, new expenditures should be deferred to the following year.

Stevens said any new item would have to be studied to determine its impact and spending beyond the approved budget would have to be justified to the taxpayer.

Sisson said if a new expense was necessary, council should see if it can be financed over a two-year period.

Travel and convention costs

When asked if they would be willing to halt all travel and convention expenses for the next three years, all except McCarthy said such costs were necessary for staff and councillors.

Cox, Lewis, Sisson and Rivett all said conventions are an important tool in lobbying for provincial support, provide staff training and keep councillors in touch with their counterparts from other areas of the province.

Cap on hiring more staff

On the question of freezing municipal and county staff at their present levels, Sisson, Lewis, Cox and Rivett said future growth and expansion of services would make such a proposal undesirable. If workload increased, all four said new staff would have to be hired to maintain service.

Chamber of Commerce

All six of the candidates support the idea that the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce should be financially supported by the county and should assume the responsibility of marketing the county's tourism industry.

Stevens said he would not want to see the input from chamber membership diminished. Cox said funding for the chamber should be constant from one year to the next and he favoured support for the chamber over a county planning office. Bishop said that while he supports county support for the chamber, there should be more coordination between the two groups and a careful review of how money is spent.

Official Plan

On the issue of the proposed county official plan. Only McCarthy expressed a desire to proceed with the county official plan at this time. He said an overall county plan is needed before other municipalities begin developing their own documents. He was the only candidate from a municipality which does not already have an official plan.

Rivett said each municipality has its own planning requirements and a county plan should wait until all municipalities have official plans of their own.

Cox said the county does not require an official plan at all and developing the document would only add another level of bureaucracy to the planning process and further delay approvals.

Stevens said because Dysart, Minden and Cardiff already have official plans, adopting a county plan before the other seven municipalities also have official plans is a bone of contention. But he does think some umbrella plan is needed for the county to tie in major concerns like the environment.

Bishop said a county official plan will not reduce provincial interest in local planning matters because the ministries of natural resources and environment will not give the county a free hand.

Sisson said until the question of municipal restructuring is settled, he sees no point in proceeding with the official plan at this time.

McCarthy was also the only candidate who favoured maintaining the county planning office which was established last year. He said the county should be run like a business and, to be successful, a business needs long-term planning to develop objectives.

Stevens supported the idea of using outside planning consultants instead of a county planner, at least for the next three years.

Bishop said he is not in favour of the direction taken by the county so far, but he's not sure how to backtrack. He said, with the amount of intelligence in the county, he doesn't see the need for either a county planner or outside consultants.

Board candidates debate tax increases

With an average of 60 per cent of local tax dollars going to education, there is a great deal of interest in the board of education trustee elections this year.

Candidates at the tax coalition meeting struggled with some of the tough questions being asked in the interest of lowering local education costs.

Even though last Saturday's meeting was scheduled against the high school award's night, the session involving the trustees had the best candidate turnout.

In attendance were 14 candidates from four municipalities. County-wide there are 28 people seeking one of 15 positions of the board of education.

At the meeting were: Wendy Ladurantaye, Mary Anne Wilson, Wally Bunn, Marian Harris, John Purc, Mike Kitcheman and Norman Mills from Anson, Hindon and Minden; Len Salvatori, Wayne Wood, Tim Casey and Julia Robertson from Dysart et al; LeRoy Eager and Trevor Pawson from Stanhope and acclaimed Snowdon trustee Elsa Louise May.

While the issue of responsible taxation could be handled fairly easily by the council candidates, it was evident that the issue of fiscal responsibility is much tougher when the quality of education for local students hangs in the balance.

All of the candidate supported the ideal of keeping education costs under tight rein, but in light of ever-increasing demands on the system, couple with decreasing provincial funding, many admitted there is little that can be done at the local level.

Unanimous agreement was reached on only a couple of issues. All candidates agreed that they are not in favour of implementing the junior Kindergarten in Haliburton County, a program which has been mandated by the province. They also agreed that the trustees should have their performance reviewed at a public meeting after a year in office.

There was disagreement on most other issues and, in many cases, there was a distinct difference of opinion between the incumbent trustees and the first-time candidates.

Increased education taxes

Although all the candidates felt increases in education taxes should be held to the rate of inflation or less, there was significant disagreement about the possibility of achieving that goal.

Pawson, Salvatori, Eager, Casey, Ladurantaye and Harris all said the board could not increase to the rate of inflation because of the reduction in government grants, increased enrolment and downloaded programs.

Kitcheman and Purc both said they believed the board should begin the budget process with the goal of holding the line on tax increases and find alternative methods to reduce costs.

Wilson said that under current conditions the board has to struggle with its budget and pressure has to be put on the education ministry to review funding policies.

Review of board staff

The candidates were asked if they would approved a study to review the efficiency of staff at the board of education office.

Wood, Eager and Salvatori turned down the idea, saying a study would be too expensive and would not be warranted because of the small number of staff members.

In reply, Casey said if the study found that one of the current positions could be eliminated, the board could save between $75,000 and $100,000 a year.

Purc said there are enough knowledgeable people, such as retired teachers, already in the county who could carry out the study with limited cost.

Ladurantaye said such reviews have been carried out in the past and are a healthy process which improves board operation.

Referenda for Capital Projects

In reference to last week's decision by the current board to approve a $2.9 million expansion of the Archie Stouffer Elementary School, candidates were asked if they would support binding referenda to approve large capital projects financed beyond the term of the board members.

Most of the trustees said they would not be in favour of such a proposal, citing the costs involved and the further delays which such votes would cause. It was also noted that such capital projects already require the approval of the education ministry and the Ontario Municipal Board. Candidates who opposed the idea said trustees invest a lot of time and energy making these decisions and it would be difficult to fully educate the public for a vote.

In support of the notion, Purc and Kitcheman said referenda would result in more public input into the decision-making process.

Tracking the budget

The candidates were asked if they favour including an up-to-date account of how the board's actual expenditures compare to budget forecasts at the monthly board meetings.

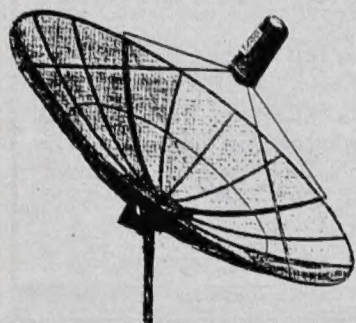

This issue lead to a series of debates between a couple of the incumbent trustees and coalition member Gary Kenney who was acting as a moderator for the meeting.

Kenney said that at the board meetings he attended, expenditures were passed but no reference was made to whether or not the board was within budget.

In response, Casey challenged Kenney to attend a meeting of the finance committee to witness, firsthand, the effort which goes into approving expenditures.

Ladurantaye accused Kenney of judging the board after attending only one meeting and said the board meetings are not geared toward

"We're in a real tough spot here tonight," Dysart trustee Tim Casey told the audience at Saturday's tax coalition candidates meeting. "The teaching lobbyists want Utopia and concerned taxpayers are mad about the money we're spending now, let alone the cost of Utopia."

With those two sentences, Casey painted a very clear picture of the opposing interests fighting for control of the Haliburton County Board of Education.

One side advocates small schools, small classes and modern equipment, the other is pushing for lower taxes and more accountable fiscal management.

Caught in the middle are trustees who are elected to represent the taxpayers and have to find a balance between the public purse and the public's children.

Compounding the problem is the fact that education grants to the county have been decreasing at a steady rate, forcing the school board to raise taxes just to maintain the quality of education with no improvements.

When you remove government-mandated programs, teachers' wages and transportation costs, three areas over which trustees have little control, the board has less than 20 per cent of the total budget to work with. For several years, trustees have expressed the frustration of trying to meet unlimited expectations with limited resources.

On many occasions Saturday night it was obvious the coalition is far less prepared when it comes to education issues than it is for matters of municipal councils as candidates set the record straight on local education expenditures and budget procedures.

For the trustee campaign to be meaningful, voters will have to decide where their priorities are with respect to the quality and cost of education then judge the candidates which most closely hold the same views.

The board you elect will be the board you, and your children, will have to live with for the next three years.

In a bulldog's eye,

Arthur Black, Canadian Columnist, October 1991

Actually, I'm being unkind. The ideal of Canada does trigger the imagination of the British people - but only in the wildest and most hallucinatory way. Consider this passage from a recent edition of the Manchester Guardian - one of Britain's "quality" newspapers. A correspondent by the name of Ralph Whitlock is musing over the contents of a letter he has received from a Canadian friend. Ralph writes in the Guardian: "Some of the encounters of man with wildlife are frightening...Elks (sic), moose and other ungu-lates are known to be unpredictable... Bears overturn beehives and frighten everybody... Also, coyotes are getting familiar with man and losing their fear of him... One even dragged a 16-year-old from a campsite in Banff."

The amount of sheer balderdash in the foregoing passage is quite astounding. The only bears most Canadians ever see play football for Chicago. Your average Canuck wouldn't know a live elk from a tame Rotarian. And a coyote "dragging a 16-year-old from a campsite"? 'Arf a mo' there Ralph, lad. My encyclopedia tells me the average coyote runs about three and a half feet from pointy snout to tip of fluffy tail. And a mature adult weighs in at a shopping 30 pounds soaking wet.

The Queen's wussiest corgi could clean a coyote's clock.

Old Ralph isn't the only Brit to view Canada through Hollywood-coloured sunglasses - or to blab about it in the daily papers. A British actor by the name of John Sessions recently whined and mewled all over the pages of The Independent about his terrible four-year ordeal in Canada. Mister Sessions did not take well to life in the Great White North. As a matter of fact, it drove him to the slough of

Letter represents vast majority

Editor:

Concerning Francine Newton's rather fractious and polemic letter of October 21, perhaps what we really need are more people like N. Wiebe, who's letter on October 15 represents a vast majority of citizens who are not participants in political affairs because they are dissatisfied with its present leaders, candidates and systems. This is a refreshing change from many people who remain apathetic.

Francine Newton exemplifies a political system that is intimidating and naive toward needed changes.

To dwell on the fact of whether it's "John" or "Jean" is purely irrelevant. Everyone in Canada is aware that "Jean" is the french version of "John". The allegation that N. Wiebe named the wrong gentleman is absurd.

Thank you for emergency help

Editor:

Last Sunday we closed my brother-in-law's cottage on lake Kashagawigamog and were on our way home when our '92 Taurus Wagon was involved in what could have been a very serious accident. Everyone in our vehicle was wearing seat belts and fortunately for me the air bag on the car functioned and possibly saved my life. The reason for this letter is to thank the Minden residents, who ironically were on their way home from Tennessee stopped, and through the use of their cellular phone called for help. The police and ambulance came almost immediately. We were all very upset at the time so did not get any names. We were however, most grateful.

We would like to thank The Times, its Editor Jay Kerr-Wilson and especially reporter Susan Grober for all your help in finding a home for Drifter, the abandoned dog which we found.

Within hours of publication of The Times' article about lost dogs our phone began to ring. In all we receive about 15 to 20 calls.

Two days later Drifter moved out to meet his new family which includes two young children, another puppy and even a cat for him to play with.

A big thank you also to Dr. Peter Bennett for his assistance and to all of the kind people who called us.

What bothered Mister Sessions most about his sanity-sapping prison sentence in Canada? "The hideous blizzards" he wrote. "You simply couldn't walk above ground from November to March."

Well, I've never passed a winter squatting on an Arc-

But then, neither has Mister Sessions. Those ghostly lost years he moans about were all spent within the city limits of Hamilton, Ontario.

Clearly Mister Sessions' hatred of Canada goes beyond stupidity or even malevolence. The man is deluded. But why? Why do the Brits get Canada so wrong?

I think the rest of Europe is to blame. Continental Europeans have never been kind about the English. They laugh at English stuffiness and the wretched English cuisine. Worse. Europeans joke about English... you know. Sex.

That explains the English penchant for fantasy - Canada is a mere plaything for a sexually deprived Dirty Old County.

New well too costly a venture, says Minden councillor seen from the Ministry of Environment," said Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher, who is also a member of the public utilities committee.

In a recorded vote, council passed a resolution to accept the report.

Reeve Bern Berry, Maher, and councillors Bob Sisson and Verne Graham voted in favour of the resolution, and Stevens voted against.

Stevens said council should accept Triton's previous offer to flush the St. Germain well in an attempt to clear the turbidity, at a cost of only $10,000.

He said this would be a more feasible project, especially since studies have shown the well has adequate water supply.

"We have water in the river as well," said Graham, "but we can't use that, and we can't use the well... The water is not acceptable."

Berry said an addendum to the engineers' report states the St. Germain well site is susceptible to contaminants, and questions its long-term reliability.

"Both written and verbally, the Ministry of Environment states the best site is Bobcaygeon," said Berry. "The engineers say the same thing. And I personally feel the Bobcaygeon site would be the most reliable area."

"Have they said how we're going to pay for it?" asked Stevens. "Why do they give us the moon if they know we can't afford the moon? Don't they have to give us a feasible plan?"

Graham pointed out that council was only voting to accept the report, and that the public would have an opportunity to provide input on the matter. "I don't know why we're arguing," he said, "the public is going to decide."

When the municipality was advised 18 months ago that existing wells couldn't support future development outside its water lines, Northern Eagle Engineering was hired to find an additional water source for the village.

After a series of options were considered, the well was drilled on St. Germain Street using money taken out of a $160,000 reserve fund set aside for the project.

Geology studies and water quality tests performed by

Geo Logic Inc. showed the well had adequate water supply and suitable water quality, with the exception of turbidity levels which could be reduced through normal water treatment.

But there have been problems in obtaining Ministry of Environment approval. And, said Berry: "Council felt things were not progressing, and decided that to have it handled more efficiently and more expediently we'd go with a company that's larger and more established."

So the municipality discharged Northern Eagle, and hired Triton Engineering at a tendered price of $47,000 to do a complete report and make recommendations on a preferred location for a new well.

When the turbidity concerns arose, Geo Logic offered to return to the site and run a seven-day pumping test in an effort to clean the water, and then retest the well, at no additional cost to the municipality.

However, council didn't accept the offer in fear of jeopardizing its contract with Triton, which later agreed to flush the St. Germain well at a cost of $10,000.

At a September meeting, the public utilities committee recommended that council instruct Triton to carry out additional work on the St. Germain well before pursuing a new site on Bobcaygeon road, beside the two existing wells.

Committee chairman Ed Pergolas feels council shouldn't ignore this recommendation.

But Berry, who attended the committee meeting as an ex-officio member, disputed the results of the vote for this recommendation.

He said committee members Phil Graham and Mike Maher didn't raise their hands during the initial vote.

When a second one was called for, the vote was carried two-to-one, with Graham and Tom Prentice raising their hands for, and Maher abstaining.

"I think the vote was questionable," said Berry.

"I agree with the reeve," said Maher.

Still, Stevens feels the municipality should take a chance and flush the St. Germain well, since $45,387 has already gone to Geo Logic, Northern Eagle, and toward drilling.

"It would be nice to go ahead with it, because we have the money," he said. "But it's hands-off, like it has got the plague on it, don't touch it."

Study to increase tourism

In an effort to boost Ontario's slumping tourism industry, the provincial and federal governments have announced that a study of the province's resorts will be carried out.

The announcement of the $150,000 study was made last Friday at the PineStone Inn by provincial tourism minister Peter North and federal minister of state for tourism and small business Tom Hocklin.

The PineStone is hosting this year's Resorts Ontario fall convention.

"The study will help us determine how we should develop and position our resort sector to gain advantages in key markets," said North. "When the study is complete we'll have clear answers as to the future direction we should be taking in this area."

The project is being funded by Resorts Ontario with provincial support under the Canada-Ontario Tourism Development Agreement.

Resorts Ontario president Bruce Stanton welcomed the announcement.

"The Ontario resort industry needs a strategic approach to development and marketing so that it will remain successful through the next decade," he said. "This study will provide the foundation for this approach."

The study will be used to develop a strategic vision for the industry and position Ontario resorts to take advantage of emerging consumer and market trends. It is part of a series of studies being undertaken by the provincial and federal governments to enhance the competitive position of Ontario's tourism industry.

Solutions sought by local economic action committee

problems.

The meeting opened with Drainville outlining some of the problems facing the local economy. He said the tourism industry in Haliburton County has declined by 40 per cent in the last two years, the agricultural sector is in crisis and employment in the two counties runs from 10 to 20 per cent.

The floor was then opened up for people to list the economic problems as they see them.

As would be expected, many of the business people and farmers expressed concerns about the effect of government policies on the economic climate.

The free trade agreement with the United States, high taxation and proposed changes to Ontario's Labour Relations Act were all mentioned as hurdles to economic recovery.

There were also several complaints about the long delays caused by the provincial bureaucracy, especially in planning and development matters.

Other identified problems included too much government, real estate speculation, lack of skilled labour, and the absence of an effective transportation system.

Members of the agricultural community said the farm financing system has to be improved to foster a healthy farming industry in the area.

Another concern is that the province is downloading programs onto the municipalities causing property taxes to soar and hurting many businesses.

Once some of problems had been listed, the committee turned its attention on suggesting some solutions, looking at each industry in turn.

Forestry

Dr. Peter Schleifenbaum, owner of Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve, said proper forest management is an important issue which affects, not only the forestry industry, but areas like tourism as well.

Presently there are small woodlot owners and large timber companies like E.B. Eddy but no medium-sized forest holdings, said Schleifenbaum. He suggested that the tax system should be reshuffled to account for land used for timber production.

"Forest lands are taxed on their ability to be developed, not their ability to produce timber," he said.

Haliburton resident Godfrey Tyler said despite the importance of forestry in Haliburton County and the potential market for hardwood products, the industry has been virtually ignored in previous economic development issues.

Development

The overwhelming consensus among committee members was that developments are being delayed, in some instances for as long as 18 years, because provincial approvals take so long.

It was recommended that the approval process be streamlined so developers would know exactly what is required by municipalities and the province and a reasonable response time from ministries be implemented.

Glen Hodgson, who was at the meeting on behalf of the Haliburton County Development Corporation (HCDC), suggested that provincial legislation be amended requiring a provincial response to developments within 21 days and if no response was received by that time, it would mean automatic approval.

Tourism

There was general agreement that the tourism industry has been hurt by the current economic recession, but many people said the area has to become more aggressive in its efforts to promote Victoria-Haliburton as a tourist destination.

It was suggested that the old C.N. rail corridor, which runs north from Lindsay to Haliburton Village, could be developed as a tourist attraction with a sightseeing train service.

Godfrey Tyler raised the issue of Algonquin Park which occupies a large area in the north-east corner of Haliburton County.

Because access to the Park is limited through either Huntsville or Whitney, Tyler said Haliburton is being denied any benefits from the park's tourist potential.

Further recommendations to enhance the tourism industry included the need to preserve the area's natural beauty and prevent further lake pollution and to put more effort into developing local cultural industries like theaters, arts and crafts, and music.

Agriculture

Farming is the single largest industry in Victoria County and in attendance at the meeting were pork, beef, dairy and sheep producers.

They said the biggest problems facing the agricultural sector are the loss of farm land to development and inadequate farm financing.

It was suggested that local a processing industry could be developed instead of shipping farm products away to be processed in other parts of the province.

Because of current market conditions, farmers say unless there is an increase in the prices paid by consumers, the agricultural industry must continue to receive government subsidies.

After the meeting,

Drainville described the effort as "one small step" in trying to look at the economic development challenges facing Victoria-Haliburton.

While admitting that he had left himself open to "government bashing" by calling the meeting, Drainville said he was pleased with the content of the discussion.

"Several ideas came up which I had never thought of. That's why we need these meetings," he said. He was particularly interested in the point raised by Tyler about Haliburton County being denied access to Algonquin Park.

Members of the Victoria-Haliburton Economic Action Committee (formerly called the economic development committee) agreed to meet monthly in order to pursue the issues raised at Thursday's inaugural meeting.

The next meeting will be held in early December, and will focus on the tourism industry.

25 years of caring: Hyland Crest seniors' home has anniversary celebration

by Susan Grober

More than a few tears flowed as Grace Coburn's voice filled the Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home auditorium with joyous music last week.

Coburn performed the song Bless This House 25 years ago, when Hyland Crest first opened. Now she is a resident of the home, and her most recent rendering of the song was an emotional moment for those who turned out for Hyland Crest's anniversary celebration on Friday.

"I heard Grace practice earlier this week," Administrator Rheta Jones told the many community members and dignitaries in attendance. "I cried then, just like I'm crying today."

Another Hyland Crest resident, Winnifred Barnum, also utilized her talents to commemorate the occasion by donating a beautiful red and white quilt. Barnum designed the quilt herself, and crafted it to be used as a wall hanging.

The ceremony was also attended by two people who helped found Hyland Crest. They were introduced by the home's resident liaison officer, Isabel Keefer.

Muriel Medley was part of the fellowship group of Carnarvon United Church Women who initiated the project to meet the needs of the county's senior citizens.

Medley served on the Findings Committee, Building Committee, and the Advisory Board to Committee of Management. She also served as general chairman on the Donations Committee, as liaison on the Hyland Crest Auxiliary, and cut the ribbon at the home's official opening.

"It was built out of Christian love to care for the people, and it's sure done its job," Medley said of the home.

Mark Vasey was on the Findings Committee, Building Committee, and was the first chairman of the Hyland Crest Committee of Management.

"I think the reason Hyland Crest is still standing here today is because of the excellent workmanship," said Vasey, who also told the residents: "I hope your grandchildren will be as well taken care of as you are today."

Two people who have been with Hyland Crest since the beginning received special honours from the county.

Marie Baker, house-keeping and laundry supervisor, and Ken Fielding, maintenance supervisor, were given 25 year pins by the county's Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight, who served as the home's acting administrator before Jones was hired).

Alan Cavell, program supervisor with the Ministry of Community and Social Services, said he has worked with Hyland Crest for 15 years, and expects to see many changes.

"Yes, there are big things coming in the future, and I hope we can all be part of that," said Jones.

Other presentations included a framed message from Premier Bob Rae, presented by local MPP Dennis Drainville, and a scroll and picture of Queen Elizabeth from MP Bill Scott.

Drainville said many people have worked together to help make Hyland Crest an excellent environment for seniors.

Staff, family, friends, clergy, and local, provincial and federal politicians have all provided "care, compassion and commitment so the people we love can be cared for with dignity and respect," he said.

Scott was reeve of Snowdon when Hyland Crest was built, and said the community can be "proud of the treatment the patients get here... It's a wonderful haven for people who can't be in their own home."

He said Hyland Crest has grown over the years, and commended those who "help make this a comforting place for those who blazed the way to make this country a great place."

County Warden Carol Puffer said many improvements have been made to maximize the facilities of Hyland Crest since it opened in 1966, and wished the home "a happy 25th anniversary, and many, many more to come."

A representative of CUPE Local 1225 presented a plaque to the home.

The home's first administrator, Elsie Bursey, was also present, as well as medical supervisor Stephen Dawson, United Church minister Ed Moll, who performed the benediction, and Minden Reeve Bern Berry, who chairs the county Hyland Crest Committee.

Berry said one of his greatest pleasures has been participating with four 100th birthday celebrations at the home. "I hope to help celebrate several more," he said.

Music was provided by members of the Royal Canadian Legion band, who piped in the dignitaries, and performed the national anthem and Amazing Grace. Also, pianist Bill Gliddon performed a selection from Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, and a piece he wrote, which was dedicated in memory of his grandmother, a resident of Hyland Crest.

Hyland Crest resident Winnifred Barnum looks on as a quilt she made for the senior home's 25th anniversary is unfurled by the county's Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight and Doris Robertson. The quilt was designed by Barnum to be hung on a wall, and features the names of the home's residents.

for School Board Trustee

Social worker will deal with students

by Susan Grober

A full-time social worker will be hired through Kinark to serve the Haliburton County Board of Education.

At last Tuesday's board meeting, trustees agreed to provide $11,950 to cover part of the cost of hiring the social worker. The money will cover extras such as transportation and benefit costs, and Kinark Child and Family Services will pay the rest of the costs.

However, not all trustees were in favour of the proposal. Wayne Wood expressed concern it may duplicate social services already available in the county.

"In Haliburton there are 28 different services," he said.

"I just can't see us subsidizing this."

Wendy Ladurantaye, who chairs the Special Projects Committee, said there were concerns of overlap, but Kinark is picking up most of the cost and the demand for a social worker is critical.

"Right now there is a very real need in the school system for somebody to help us out,"

she said.

To prove the point, Director of Education Brad Saunders said recently a child in Grade 2 stabbed a fellow student in the back with a pair of scissors.

"This child is very disturbed, and need help," said Saunders.

The social worker will visit the homes of such students, and work with their families, he explained. The social worker would be an employee of Kinark, and work out of the Kinark office.

Saunders said the social worker will focus on elementary level students. "If we're going to work with problematic children, the younger we can work with them, the better," he said.

Wally Bunn also expressed some concern over the proposal, and Len Salvatori assured him that the one year pilot project will be closely monitored by the board.

Salvatori said the need for a social worker is obvious. "Once a kid is out of control, they need help."

"But do you believe the social worker is going to stop that?" asked Bunn.

"I don't know, but the situations are bad," said Salvatori. "Do you want your kid stabbed in the back?"

Craig Pettit supported the proposal. "It's a good idea to have someone working with the problem in the home," he said.

The majority of trustees voted in favour of providing funds to hire the social worker on a one year trial basis.

Misspelling irks Minden councillor

The following matters were discussed in brief during the October 24 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden council.

Mispelt literature

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher is perturbed by misspellings of Hindon township found in recent literature to the municipality.

Letters sent to the municipality from the Minden Indoor Lawn Bowling Club and the Royal Canadian Legion had Hindon spelled as Hinden, said Maher.

"It's something that's creeping in all over," he said, noting that the same misspelling can be found in the campaign literature of two candidates, including that of Reeve Bern Berry.

"I guess I can't be responsible for all the spelling," said Berry with a smile.

Site plan okayed

Construction of an electronic sales and service store off of Highway 121 received approval when council passed a bylaw to authorize a Site Plan Agreement with Archie and Marilyn Dobbins for construction of the two-level, timber frame building.

On behalf of the municipality's planning department, Elaine McCrea explained that the property is cleared, and that the couple plans to have 50 parking spaces, which well exceeds the bylaw.

There will be a buffer of trees between the commercial and residential properties, and there are also plans for landscaping, planters and a sidewalk.

Chief Building Official Tom Hubercheck initially had some concerns over a retaining wall included in the plan, but McCrea said she and Hubercheck looked it over and "he's happy with the way it is now."

Dobbins asked for temporary occupancy if the work can't be completed over the winter. He received approval from McCrea, who said most of the site plan work is completed.

Still, council requires a letter of credit from Dobbins to ensure he fulfills the Site Plan Agreement.

Reeve Bern Berry explained that this new requirement was enacted because council has been burned by others in the past. "It's a matter of growing up," he said.

Cost of coffee

As council passed the Haliburton County Ambulance accounts, Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher questioned an item for fixing a beverage holder.

Councillor Lewis Stevens explained that the beverage holder is used to hold coffee in the door of the vehicle, and if it weren't fixed there would be quite a mess.

"I think it would be cheaper to clean their uniforms," joked Maher.

Maher went on to justify council's actions in keeping costs down, despite some accusations that councillors are sometimes too nit-picky when it comes to spending.

"I think it's our job to nickel and dime," he said.

Stanhope election candidates address issues at meeting

by Carol Moffatt

The issues of Market Value Assessment, county restructuring and waste management topped the agenda at Stanhope township's All Candidate's Night held last Saturday evening.

About 100 people crammed into the Stanhope community hall to hear nine speeches in the race for the positions of reeve, three councillors and a board of education trustee.

Coalition puts trustees on the hot seat

putting on a show for the public. She said every trustee is well versed in the board's financial situation and any that aren't can ask. Her defence drew a round of applause from the audience.

Gratuities

One issue the coalition has focused on is the payment of retirement gratuities to teachers. The gratuities are cash payments, equaling up to one-half of a teacher's annual salary, which are based on unused sick leave.

All the trustees indicated support for abolishing the gratuities except for Mills, who said the payment served as an incentive for teachers who have done a good job looking after the interests of the students.

Most trustees said the gratuities were started at a time when teachers were poorly paid but are no longer necessary. They supported the idea of phasing the payments out, starting with new teachers.

Expanding schools

When asked whether or not the board should be adding new schools or enlarging existing facilities, Harris, Ladurantaye and Wilson said they felt Archie Stouffer Elementary School was large enough and they do not favour an expansion. They said students and the county would be better served by building smaller schools in some of the outlying areas which would reduce busing costs and limit student populations.

Casey summed up the difficult position facing trustees. He said on one hand there is a lobby group of teachers who want Utopia, and on the other hand taxpayers are upset with the current cost of education, let alone the cost of Utopia.

Although he was not happy with the decision to expand Archie Stouffer, Casey said it was the only viable alternative the board could afford.

In their closing statements, the candidates reflected on the tough position of having to provide quality education to a growing number of students and also wanting to reduce the burden on local taxpayers.

tee. (The position of deputy reeve was acclaimed by current councillor Eleanor Harrison.)

Outgoing reeve Harry Davis received a standing ovation before thanking the audience for its support in his "17 years and a bit" with council. "I'll miss the gang but I'll be around serving on a committee or two if I can."

Current Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker opened the speeches and based her bid for reeve on 17 years in the community of Stanhope, asking voters to get to know her not as councillor or business person, but as an individual.

Barker spoke of her service to the community, including many years of fundraising, work on the Social Action, Fun Day, Recreation, Roads and Waste Management Committees. Barker was named Stanhope Citizen of the Year in 1981, was elected to council in 1983 and moved up to the seat of deputy-reeve in 1988.

"I do not sit on the fence. I speak my mind and I deal with the issues at hand," Barker said emphatically, citing Market Value Reassessment, waste management and county planning as issues the new council will be facing.

"It's not easy to find the answers, in fact it will be more difficult," she said.

Running against Barker is current councillor Fred Gardner, a life-long Hall's Lake (more on page 14)

OLD FASHIONED SERVICE IS A PRICELESS COMPONENT OF EVERYTHING WE SELL

Stanhope election candidates speak out

cottager who became a permanent resident in 1986.

Gardner, a real estate agent in Minden, cited his past accounting, budgeting and business experience as qualifications for his bid.

"Why am I running? I was upset with county (council) last spring and the 37.5 per cent increase and I want to effectively represent Stanhope on county council," he said, targeting new fire trucks, the proposed Hawk Lake landfill expansion, county restructuring, waste management and MVA as issues at the forefront of the new council.

"We must resist the province's push for MVA until it's further understood," he said.

Candidates running for the three councillor positions include current councillor Murray Daniels, and newcomers Barb Nangle Jim Hicks, Bob Pollard and Ed Turner.

Daniels' speech focused on Stanhope's community spirit, citing the township's assets, its people, airport, firehall and new municipal office. "We have all this and we're debt free," he said, noting the municipality's continuing balanced budget.

Daniels cautioned voters about restructuring and MVA, which he called another form of capital gains tax. "But this is perennial," he said, pointing out issues such as water levels, gypsy moths, new equipment for both the roads and fire departments, and a new bridge at St. Peter's Rd. as the focus of the new council.

Jim Hicks first came to Stanhope as a camper at Calumet Camp in 1936 and has been coming back ever since.

"The kids got older and the mortgage more expensive so my wife and I worked around the county (during the summer), at Pinestone, at Mr. Fogg's, I did some building and even cleaned up roadside parks," he said.

He retired from his position as a principal with the Peel Region School Board in 1986, spent two years working with Kinark, and drove a schoolbus.

"I've had a variety of careers in Haliburton. I know the people and I know the issues and my objectives are to continue to maintain the existing open and responsible approach to council," he said.

Barb Nangle spoke of her long involvement in Stanhope over the years, including six years on the Recreation Committee and work with the Fun Day Committee.

She outlined her involvement as Assistant Librarian at the Stanhope Library, her church membership where she has been a rector's warden for 6 years, and her job with the John Howard Society for adult education and literacy in Haliburton.

She cited MVA restructuring, taxes and the environment at issues at hand. "I care about this community. I will do my best to provide well-informed discussions," she said.

Bob Pollard is currently the Operations Superintendent at the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre, Pollard explained that his work there has provided him extensive experience in issues of forestry, dumps, tax evaluations and environmental assessments.

He further explained that he oversees the kitchens, vehicles, administration, expenditure control and the $1.5 million budget of the centre.

"I've only lived in Stanhope for four years and I've been on the fire department for all four of those years." He's also on the executive of the Stanhope Fire Fighter's Association, and a curling club member and past executive.

"I'm not a passive participant. Rather than sit at home and complain to my wife I've decided to try to make a difference," he said.

Ed Turner although his family has only lived in Stanhope for a year and a half, but have been coming to the area for 23 years.

Turner said outright that he has no political experience, but that he has worked previously in computer programming and in sales of high-tech hospital equipment.

He listed MVA, waste management and water pollution as focal issues for the new council, and spoke of the legacy today's adults will be leaving for their children.

"It's not so much where the township has been or the next three years, it's the legacy we leave our children that's important," he said.

Leroy Eager and Trevor Pawson are the only two candidates in the race for Board of Education trustee.

Eager emphasized the need for the county to regain some of its educational autonomy, citing the government's proposal to make junior kindergarten mandatory by 1994.

"Four-year-olds going to school is great in an urban area where Mum can drop them off and pick them up, but in a rural area getting four-year-olds up a six o'clock in the morning to get the bus to school is ridiculous," he said.

Eager thinks there is too much government interference with private enterprise in Canada in terms of blanket governmental mandates which don't consider the differences between urban and rural educational systems.

Pawson also spoke of the need to be responsible to the children and the parents of the township. A lifelong cottager and 10-year resident with three young children, Pawson has worked for the Ministry of the Environment for 13 years.

He reminded the audience that 50 per cent of their taxes goes to the school board and the need for parental input is important.

"The kids we're educating now will be making major decisions later," he said, citing the overcrowding at Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School as a focal point.

"The provincial average is 400 students and we have 600 at Archie Stouffer with about 200 at the old IGA," he said. "I'm aware of the problems and I want to be responsible to the needs of kids and parents. I'll work hard for them to see that money is never spent needlessly or irresponsibly."

Junior Redmen
Kawartha
West Champions

Getting a boost from a visitor from Lindsay, a Redmen Junior Soccer player put his head to work during the championship game last Tuesday in Haliburton.

Atoms shut-out Little Britain

On Saturday, October 19, the Tri-County Atoms were back in action playing host to Little Britain.

After three periods of hard fought hockey, the home team emerged with a 2-0 win. Cam Neville was solid in the nets to record his second successive shutout. Chris Little and Michael Hamilton were the goal scorers for Minden with Little also picking up an assist on the Hamilton goal.

On Monday, October 21, the Atoms journeyed to Fenelon Falls for a game against the Flyers. This was not one the Minden teams' better efforts although they did hang on to a 1-0 lead until Fenelon tied the game with just 44 seconds remaining in the third period. The game ended in a 1-1 draw to maintain Minden's unbeaten string at three games. Adam Durkin scored Minden's goal with an assist to Steve Ecclestone.

On Tuesday, October 22, the boys were at home to the Haliburton team. This being a long standing rivalry, the Minden squad were asked by their coaches to come up with a really big effort. The boys responded with a great game but just could not seem to finish off their offensive plays. The line of Adam Durkin, Colin Mackenzie and Steve Ecclestone forced the play in the offensive zone but either missed the net or were stoned by Brian Mulholland in the Haliburton goal.

A first for HHSS

Junior Redmen take soccer championship

The junior Redmen soccer team capped off a successful season last Tuesday by capturing the Kawartha West trophy in a 2-1 victory over Lindsay's LCVI.

On Thursday the team advanced to the Kawartha championships in Peterborough losing their two games against the larger high schools.

The win over LCVI marked the first time that a junior soccer team from Haliburton has ever won a divisional title and the team's coach is optimistic about the effect it will have on the sport at HHSS.

"I feel very good about our season," coach Mark Flatman said in an interview on Friday. "This year's team established the junior soccer program as a good program."

In Tuesday's match-up against LCVI, the team which finished in second place behind the Redmen, Haliburton dominated the play throughout.

Haliburton took a 2-0 lead well into the second half before LCVI broke up the shut-out with its lone goal. Scoring both goals for the Redmen was Darren Parsons. Also playing strong games were Ritchie Mills and Lutz Haedicke.

It was a different story on Thursday when Haliburton travelled to Peterborough to play in a round-robin tournament for the Kawartha championship.

In the first game, the Redmen faced Crestwood and were beaten 5-0.

Despite the lopsided score, Flatman says the Redmen played an excellent game against the larger, stronger team and trailed by a score of only 1-0 at the end of the first half.

Taking advantage of a larger number of players, the Crestwood coach was able to rotate in fresh players during the second half to face the tired Redmen, scoring four unanswered goals.

Flatman gives his players credit for not giving up in the face of a rout and says it could have been a different game if the Redmen had been able to tie the game before the half-time whistle.

After the loss to Crestwood, Haliburton squared off against Adam Scott Secondary School in the consolation round.

This proved to be a much closer game with the two teams tied at 1-1 going into the second half. But as in the game against Crestwood, the Redmen found themselves facing a larger team with more depth on the bench to draw from. Adam Scott scored two goals in the second half to win 3-1.

Mills scored the lone Redmen goal with an assist by Haedicke.

At the start of the tournament, Flatman says his players seemed tentative about playing the larger schools and did not play as aggressively as they should have, which gave the momentum to the opposing teams.

Looking ahead at next season, Flatman says he will have several strong players returning to the team, but whether the Redmen can defend their title will depend on the quality of new players.

Flatman also predicts a strong senior soccer team next year which will benefit from the experience of those members of this year's junior team who are moving up.

Minden Pee Wees defeat Haliburton in close contest

On Saturday, October 19th, the Minden OMHA Pee Wees faced off against Haliburton. The Minden team once again played great hockey, but more importantly, played as a team.

Minden started off the scoring in the first period at 11:27 when Dave Raback popped one in the Haliburton net on an assist from Chris Eskelin.

In the second period at 5:59, Marty Dettman fired one in the net on an assist from Dennis Woods, to make the score 2-0 Minden. Then Haliburton came back and scored one at 14:51 to make the score 2-1 Minden at the end of the second period.

After a much needed rest between the second and third periods, Minden came back on the ice to get another goal at 10:25. This one by Jeff Wray, assisted by Marty Dettman and Dennis Woods. At 8:44 Haliburton shot one more in. Not to be out done, Minden's Dave Raback scored again at 6:29, his second of the game with the assist going to Jeff Wray. At 5:59 Haliburton scored the final goal of the game.

Final score, Minden 4 - Haliburton 3.

As the score shows, it was a see-saw game, as one team would score then the other, but Minden worked together and came out on top.

Mention should also be made for the great job done by the defencemen and goalie, Justin Rowden.

Atoms hockey

In the third period, the line of Michael Hamilton, Billy Fountain and Shawn Casey exerted pressure on every shift but couldn't buy a goal.

The defence corps of Jason Scott, Jason Horsley, Chris Little and Richard Brohm continued their excellent defensive work with Cameron Neville being very solid in the nets.

The end result of this hard fought contest was a 1-1 tie; the second in as many nights. Chris Little accounted for Minden's lone marker, unassisted.

If the early results are any indication, this team is going to be involved in many close and entertaining contests during the course of the season, and as with all Minor Hockey Teams, are well worth supporting.

Hamilton scores six to secure Double D tie

A spectacular six goal showing by Scott Hamilton was not enough to boost Kountry Double D Catering past a tie with The Times during last Monday's Men's League Hockey action at the Minden arena. Hamilton notched all of his team's goals, two of those unassisted.

His final effort secured the game for the Double D but he couldn't find the mark again before the final buzzer ended the contest. The final score was 6-6.

It was a close game with the teams trading goals throughout. Assisting on the Hamilton markers were Harold Cowen with three and Corey Walker with a pair.

Derek Allison led the charge for The Times, scoring three goals, one unassisted. He also assisted on another goal. Other Times marksmen included Doug Allison with a pair and two assists, and Dan Read with an unassisted single and an assist. Other picking up assists included Jim Crawford and Irwin Asbell.

As the 7-1 score indicates, it was anything but close as Westside Jug City trounced Hartwick Construction.

Jeff Howe was on the leading edge of that victory scoring four goals, one unassisted, and assisting on another. Singles were scored by Lorne Burgess, Dave Hartwick and Ed Gibbons, all who also picked up single assists. Other assists were awarded to Steve Crowe with a pair, Mike Keaney and Scott Danilko each with singles.

The lone Hartwick goal was scored by Jeff Stamp.

In the opening game of the evening Home Hardware was awarded the victory by default over Sid Stamp Fuels due to an insufficient number of players.

Action continues this Monday as Double D take on Home at 8 p.m.; Times plays Westside at 9 p.m.; and Hartwick versus Stamp at 10 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

Juniors are K-West champs— Seniors force play-off game

It was a red letter day for the Redmen Football teams last Friday. The two teams face LCVI in crucial contests. The Juniors rolled over the competition to nail down the Kawartha West Championship. Meanwhile the seniors had to win their game to force a deciding game for positions in the the play-offs. They won and will have one more chance to remain in contention. That game is scheduled for this Wednesday, in Lindsay against LCVI again.

The juniors now have a 6-0 record on the year while the seniors have won 3 and lost 3

The juniors advance to the Kawartha championship this week in Peterborough and if the seniors win Wednesday, they'll be part of the same play-off

Concert proceeds will help Women's Safety Network

A benefit musical concert is being held next month to raise money for the Women's Safety Network in Haliburton County.

The two-hour program will include local musical talent and two performers from Toronto, Brent Titcomb and Louise Lambert.

Titcomb is an acclaimed singer, musician, composer, dancer and actor who performs at music festivals, in clubs, and on records and works in TV, radio and film.

His songs have been recorded by performers like Anne Murray and Glen Campbell, and he has been described as one of Canada's most talented artists.

Lambert is mainstay of the Toronto club scene with her repertoire of jazz, blues and boogie songs. She is well-known and respected among the music-going public and Toronto musicians and in the past has performed at Minden's Rockcliffe Tavern.

Titcomb and Lambert will perform during the second hour of the benefit concert and local musical talent will take the stage during the first hour.

The proceeds from the concert will go to the Women's Safety Network, an organization which deals with the problems of assault and violence against women and works to provide shelter for those in need.

The concert is being held on Nov. 3, in the auditorium of the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The show starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door or they can be purchased in advance at locations around the villages of Minden and Haliburton. For more information call 457-5338.

Goals announced for county official plan

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Haliburton County's proposed official plan should protect the environment, encourage economic development and safeguard the dignity, rights and freedoms of county residents.

Those are the objectives expressed in a list of 14 goals released by the county planning department last week.

The goals were developed after the county held a series of public meetings, circulated a questionnaire and met with eight of the 10 municipal councils in the county.

They represent the "ideal kind of community" toward which the county should be working and will provide a framework for specific planning policies which will be developed as part of the official plan, according to a county report.

The list of 14 goals is only a first draft and will be finalized toward the end of the process of preparing the plan.

Environmental concerns are evident in five of the 14 goals and deal with issues like the conservation of water, forestry and wildlife resources; minimized pollution of air, land and water; ensuring development is environmentally sustainable and fostering the wise use of the county's natural resources.

Other issues addressed by the goals include:

Orderly settlement patterns in the county,

Support for social, cultural, health and education facilities,

The provision of a transportation system to facilitate the movement of goods and people both in and out of the county,

Budgeting the county's financial resources to provide services which meet the needs of residents and,

Preserving and promoting strong local government in accordance with the two-tier system of planning and government in the county,

Safeguarding the dignity of people and the expression of their rights and freedoms.

The planning department will meet with the newly-elected municipal councillors early in the New Year to discuss the draft goals, seek further input and recommendations and review additional public input.

A liaison committee consisting of senior county staff and representatives of various provincial ministries which have an interest in the county official plan has been established.

This committee meets to review major steps in the process of developing the official plan to ensure that, when completed, the plan will meet the requirements of Ontario's Planning Act.

At a meeting early this month, the provincial officials told the county that the draft terms of reference, prepared earlier this year, will be acceptable to the province once a few minor changes in wording have been made.

The ministry officials also said that the province views settlement and development pattern policies to be the most important aspect of the county official plan. The provincial government expects upper-tier government, such as the county, to provide firm policies on areas of provincial interest to reduce or remove the need for further provincially-mandated studies or approval.

Proponents of the county official plan say it will help remove the province from local issues and place more of the decision making responsibility in the hands of Haliburton County.

Recently, the county has expressed concern about the amount of extensive and costly surface and ground water testing the province will require during the preparation of the official plan. But during the meeting, provincial officials said they might accept a simpler method of testing given the county's limited resources.

The county will test their method of testing on a small settlement area to see if it will satisfy provincial requirements.

Some Haliburton County politicians have said that the county official plan should be put on hold pending a study on the county government and possible amalgamation of municipalities. The ministry of municipal affairs has responded by saying the possibility of restructuring should not be used a reason to delay the official plan. Any changes which result from restructuring could be dealt with as they occur.

The county has adopted a two-tier official plan, which means the county plan will contain policies for the entire county and each municipality will have its own, more specific document.

Because only three of the county's 10 municipalities currently have their own official plan, there is some disagreement among politicians about whether the other seven municipalities should adopt their own official plans before a county official plan is developed.

The county's management and planning committee has suggested that the county official plan could contain specific planning policies which will apply only to those seven municipalities which do not have their own documents. These policies would give way as each municipality developed and implemented its own plan.

Another concern about the county official plan has been the cost to local taxpayers of implementing its policies. In response, the county has suggested that cost estimates could be provided for the policies as they are drafted. If costs appear too high, certain policies could take precedence over others to make the plan affordable.

The planning committee has decided to apply to the ministry of municipal affairs for financial assistance to offset the costs of preparing the official plan. The recently approved terms of reference will also be submitted to the province along with the application for funding.

Tough questions for municipal candidates

Tough questions need to be asked by the business community of those candidates standing for election this fall. This is especially true for those running for Reeve or Deputy-Reeve.

Last March, Anne Barker was asked by our warden, Carol Puffer, to relay the following message to our Board from County Council:

1. That $42,000 of the $70,000 Tourism and Community Service Agreement between the Chamber and county was being withdrawn and given to Mr. Mark Stagg and his Economic Planning Development Department.

2. That the Chamber could expect a further cut again next year, followed by a total withdrawal of all funds.

There has been no indication from County of any change in that basic direction.

That decision threw the Chamber into an immediate tailspin. It is simply impossible on such short notice to replace that kind of funding and keep going on any semblance of normality. Board energy, that would usually be directed to promotion, was suddenly expended in meeting after meeting dealing with the simpler stresses of how to stay open. The uncertainty of

by Shawn Hagerman

County funding killed the Travel Guide for 1991-92.

Without County backing, no Board would entertain entering into financial or staffing commitments for publishing a travel guide. Without monies to retain a manager, it became pointless to arrange attendance at shows or take on large special projects such as the Ride for Sight or the Municipal Convention in

The still unanswered question is what are County's real plans? If they don't want monies to be directed through the Chamber for marketing, what is their plan for marketing? Hastings County has gone a similar route as us by hiring a planner. He is now busy putting out a Travel Guide for Hastings county in direct competition for advertisers with the long standing Bancroft Chamber of Commerce Travel Guide. We don't need a similar folly occurring here.

Our Chamber has, over the past 6 years, with County support put our County on the destinations map. What we did with the monies made us a success story among other Regional Chambers and Tourism Areas. Although only a fraction of the size in terms of population and tax-base, we effectively competed with the Muskoka and Georgian Bay Regions going head to head in the tight Toronto Market; even reaching out to the States and Ottawa Regions.

Now, that well-run marketing program is in shambles.

Unlike other years, we could not afford to go to the Travel Trade Show, the London Free Press Show, the Leisure Show, the Ski-Show, or the Snowmobile Show. We need more than $1500 to pay our deposit this December for the Sportsman Show, yet now lack a manager to plan and work the show. We won't even have any new guides to give out. At the moment we have less than

A year of Haliburton Highlands' promotion lost

(from page 22)

7,000 of last year's guides left to do us all next year. The In-watt's line is in operation again, but since we don't have sufficient funds to advertise the number in The Star or other publications, phone inquiries are predictably down.

What needs to happen between the Chamber and the County is for the County to be clear about all its intentions to the business community. If they do not want to use the Chamber, its resources and knowledge on a fee-for-service basis for tourism promotion and community service, then what are they going to do in its place? More to the point, what has been done with the $42,000 of Chamber promotion dollars that they kept? This money was snipped from the Chamber during the worst year of economic collapse since the depression. A question worth asking is, "Where did those dollars go and what promotion outside of this County has been accomplished over the past year?"

The question of course is rhetorical. Sadly, we all already know the answer. Unfortunately, a whole year of promotion of this County has been lost. Even if the funds were restored today, it would still take six months to a year to get back our marketing momentum to its previous level.

If the County, upon reflection and election of a new council wishes to reinstate full Chamber funding back at least to the previous level of $70,000, then it has to give a three year agreement for these funds similar to what it did from 1985-88. It is simply impossible for the Chamber to begin to rebuild and restart its marketing program if funding could be capriciously yanked again a year from now. Proper marketing takes six to twelve months lead time. It cannot be done on an ad hoc year-to-year basis. If a three year agreement cannot be secured, then the new Chamber Board should set a direction independent of County Council and its, "maybe some money next year, maybe not," approach to "granting" funds.

The question for the candidates then is, "Do you favour reinstating full Chamber funding as part of a three year tourism and promotion agreement?"

If "No", then, "What are your plans for promoting this county?" Our area's number one industry is tourism. The business community needs to know their answers to these fundamental questions.

Our County cannot afford another month's delay. The new Chamber board and the County's new council need to sit down as soon as possible before the end of this year and discuss a common strategy. Too many businesses, jobs, and people's futures can be lost if something is not done and done quickly.

YES!

We repair broken windows, screens, patio doors, etc., and can supply replacement hardware for most jobs.

Program targets drinking snowmobilers

Alarmed by a dramatic increase in snowmobiling fatalities, The Ministry of Tourism and Recreation (MTR) has announced a provincial public awareness campaign targeted to drinking snowmobilers who are responsible for the majority of these catastrophic accidents, most of which do not occur on sanctioned snowmobile trails.

Anchored by the slogan "RIDE SAFE, RIDE SOBER - BOOZE 'N SNOW DON'T GO", the initiative reflects the provincial government's serious concern, heralds a new proactive partnership with The Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs (OFSC), and is endorsed and enforced by the OPP.

The campaign is a two-pronged education thrust that will feature red and black posters placed at sled dealers, hotels, bars, liquor and beer stores, and even on the trails. A brochure, paid for and distributed by the OFSC, will highlight The Highway Safety Act, reminding snowmobilers that riding a snowmobile is governed by the same rules of the road as an automobile and carries the same penalties, including loss of drivers license.

The campaign has a broad base of both government and private support. Last May, a Snowmobile Safety Task Force was created by MTR with the participation of the ministries of transportation, Health, Northern Development, Natural Resources, and Solicitor General. Private agencies included the OFSC, the Royal Canadian Life Saving Society, the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Association, the Canadian Sport Head and Spine Research Centre, the Association of Ontario Municipalities, Resorts Ontario, Bombardier Inc. and Yamaha Motor Canada. The media is encouraged to participate by promoting awareness through public service ads and by increasing snowmobiling news and information coverage.

It is projected that the "Ride Safe, Ride Sober" campaign will continue for several years. "The ultimate goal of these first efforts," states OFSC Safety and Environment Chairperson, Peter Overington, "is to make 'Drinking and Sledding' no more acceptable than 'Drinking and Driving'."

To this end, OFSC initiated its own safety programme in 1990, formulating a safety policy and support program which was distributed to all clubs last season and which dovetails smoothly with this new provincial effort. The OFSC program continues this year with the release of a safety video and other support documents to snowmobile clubs and snow belt police forces and MNR offices.

Minden Women's Institute

On a pleasant October 16, twenty members and one guest were present at the Women's Institute meeting at the Terrace. After the usual start, business went on. Arrangements were made for a birthday tea at Hyland Crest later this month and goodies for the 4H Achievement Day in early November. A committee of Irene Moore, Mary Wilson, Jean Cox and the curator will be repairing the Tweedsmuir History books and these will be in use at the museum during the hours it's open next summer. Irene Moore reported sending cards since mid September and collections for the Card Fund and Pennies For Friendship were taken. Doris Grant showed us some stencil work she has done and will give us a demonstration next spring. The art gallery has a great show at the moment and all should see this. Delegates to area conventions are Jean Lacey and Gwen Cox, going on the district bus for voting day. It was decided that leaders Jean Lacey and Mary Cox would purchase handbooks for the Decor-Accents course. Marian Hill was introduced by Convenor Evelyn Cox and she showed slides from the tours she and Stan had been on in England and Scotland. We all appreciated this and a small gift was given to her be Annie Kernohan. The meeting adjourned and all enjoyed the snacks served by the committee. Next meeting is November 20 at the Library Cultural Centre at 2:00 with all ladies welcome.

Forestry program initiated

On September 25, 1991, the Hon. Frank Oberle, federal Minister of Forestry announced The Partners Program, the first forestry initiative under the federal government's GreenPlan. "The Partners Program will allow Canada to demonstrate leadership through world class technology and environmentally responsible forestry practices", said Mr. Oberle.

Balancing economic, environmental and social values, the Partners Program will strengthen the application of sustainable development practices in forest management. That means managing forests to ensure their future productivity, ecological diversity and capacity for regeneration.

The federal government's

Report from Ottawa

from the office of Bill Scott, MP commitment to sustainable forest development will see Canada become a world leader in forest management and practices. The Partners Program will receive $100 million over six years which will be divided among these three main components:

* Forestry Canada, in partnership with the provinces, industry, forest owners, native groups and environmental organizations, will support the establishment of model forests, approximately one for each of the eight major forest regions of Canada. Model forests will be targeted as areas where the most advanced scientific methods and forestry practices will be implemented.

* Will bring together existing provincial data into a comprehensive national forestry database, improve Canada's forest health surveillance systems, to create decision-support systems to assist forest managers, to meet society's needs and to satisfy our international obligations.

* The Expanded Research Program will concentrate on developing and improving environmentally sensitive forest management techniques and technology transfer.

Oil has wide-ranging impacts

We continue to exploit oil as if it has little ecological consequence. The Gulf war was fought over jobs and oil at a cost of $61 billion, a massive loss of Iraqi lives and an environmental nightmare. We continue to put unique, irreplaceable ecosystems like the Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, Antarctica and the Grand Banks at enormous risk for just a few more years of oil.

Oil tankers plying the ocean will continue to dump their cargo deliberately and accidentally into the waters. We have to reduce the hazards of oil and today I want to discuss one way.

Each year in Canada, an amount of used lubricating oil equivalent to seven Exxon Valdez oil spills is dumped into the air, water and soil. The U.S. pours the equivalent of 42 spills annually while globally, the equivalent of one Exxon Valdez of used oil is released every day.

But this isn't the same as crude oil. Toxic chemicals are often mixed into used oil and end up being burned in cement kilns and greenhouses, poured into sewers, rivers or fields and, until recently, put on dirt roads to keep down dust. As a result, PCBs, heavy metals and other contaminants end up in food and drinking water.

In 1979, Shell Canada had the vision to realize that recycling used oil by re-refining it was a good thing to do for the environment and since oil prices were rising, it also seemed like a good investment.

Re-refining removes toxic materials and the end product is as good as or better than lubricating oil made from crude. Shell invested a total of $22 million to build a state-of-the-art plant in Toronto.

But when oil prices plummeted in the mid-1980s, the company was forced to sell the plant at a loss and in 1987 the new owners walked away from their investment and left the premises to the banks.

Today, the idle pipes and machinery of the unused plant stand as mute reminders of our shortsightedness and the inadequacy of conventional economics to cost account oil's environmental effects.

The Toronto plant has a capacity to re-refine 45 million litres of used oil a year - that's a lot of oil to keep out of our surroundings. But the recycled product has to overcome the consumer prejudice that it isn't as good as oil made from crude.

Furthermore, while the exploration, recovery, transportation, production and sale of "virgin" oil are encouraged through government incentives, its environmental cost is not included in the price. There are no government incentive for re-refinement and re-refined lubricant must be sold and traced as a new product.

Earlier this century, there were more than 500 re-refining plants in the U.S. but today, there are only two. Canada has four. Is this "progress"? Surprisingly, China, India and Pakistan account for 85 per cent of the world's re-refineries. There are some in Canada trying to make re-refining work.

Dave Fisher, past president of the Re-refining Association of Canada, has raised more than half the $5.8 million the banks will accept for the closed Toronto re-refining plant. But to make it economically viable, Fisher needs help.

Since the late '70s, he has lobbied Conservative and Liberal governments at the federal and provincial levels to support re-using oil without success.

Yet there is a precedent for what a government can do to make re-refining oil a workable proposition. It comes from an unlikely source, the Social Credit government of B.C.

The story involves Mohawk Oil, a company in western Canada that is attempting to be as environmentally responsible as an oil company can be. Their service stations have long featured recycling bins, accepted used oil and containers and sold less polluting fuels - propane, compressed natural gas and gasohol.

Recycled oil finds uses

The company is justifiably proud of winning the Industrial Environmental Achievement Award from the federal government.

In 1979, Mohawk built a re-refining plant in North Vancouver with a capacity to process 31 million litres a year but it lost money.

Then the B.C. Environment Ministry sent a memo recommending that wherever possible, government-owned transportation facilities use re-refined oil.

The recommendation was rejected by B.C. Ferries but adopted by the Department of Highways and Transport and with that, re-refined oil achieved a wider market and respectability.

Governments wield enormous clout by setting examples that both indicate their priorities and pressure the private sector to adjust. For too long, we've been getting no signals or the wrong ones. By following B.C.'s example, any government would be in a no-loss situation - it won't cost the taxpayer money and it will help the environment.

It makes no sense for governments not to pursue this vigorously.

Cheques for the final payment for 1991 will be mailed to pensioners starting the week of October 28, 1991.

CARDS OF THANKS

Just a short thank-you to Liz, Charlie and family for taking in and making room for a worn out wanderer who had temporarily lost his way home. Your kindness and care was much appreciated by me and my humans. "Mick"

I would like to thank all our friends in both Minden and Hunter Creek Estates for their kindness, cards, phone calls and help to my wife, Muriel, while I was "Holidaying" in a hospital in Hamilton. It is at a time like this that we find out how real and true the people are in this area. Many, many thanks for your kindness and help.

Sincerely,
Ossie Mark.

IN MEMORIAM

SEARS, MILTON: In loving memory of my husband who left me, November 4, 1987.

What we'd give if we could say Hi, in just the same old way. To hear his voice, see his smile. To sit with him and chat a while. So you who have a son or brother, Cherish him with care.

For you'll never know the heartache, "Till you see his vacant chair. Sadly missed by wife Jeanne and family.

SEARS, MILTON GEORGE: In loving memory of our dear father, grandfather and great-grandfather who passed away November 4, 1987.

Beautiful memories, Are wonderful things, They last 'til the longest day, They never wear out, They never get lost, And can never be given away. To some you may be forgotten, To others a part of the past, But to us who loved and lost you,

Your memory will always last. Sadly missed by daughter Carolynn and family
